Coast Path Stretch 2 Section 7 (of 7) Gorleston Beach to Hopton-on-Sea

Along the way

Perfect as a sunrise summer stroll, or a blustery autumn ramble, the route from Gorleston Beach to Hopton-on-Sea is the sort of beach walk that's perfect all year round. From Hopton, the perspective over Gorleston's massive harbour makes its details appear small and far off, as though the short stretch of beach has pushed the world away to arm's length. With views off to the horizon and soft sand underfoot, it's a place to savour the sea air and relax. Hopton beach used to be bigger, and historic photos show a wide beach more like Gorleston's, packed with sunbathers. Changes in the currents have radically reduced the size of the beach, but recent stabilisation efforts have placed rock groynes to create sheltered, sandy bays, the perfect place to cool off after with a swim after your walk.

In the case of high or extreme tides, there is an alternative route that can be taken between the southern end of Gorleston's beach and Hopton. This route is signposted on the ground.
