

37.5 miles

Wherryman's Way

www.norfolk.gov.uk/trails

Wherryman's Way is a meandering walking trail, running between Norwich and Great Yarmouth, taking its name from the wherry, a large cargo-carrying barge whose elegant black sails were a once common sight on these waters. Running through the heart of the Broads, this trail winds along the banks of the River Yare, through open marshes, reedbeds, grazing meadows and riverside villages.

For more information see www.norfolk.gov.uk/wherrymansway