Coast Path Stretch 2 Section 5 (of 7)
Caister-on-Sea to North Denes

Legend:
- This walk
- Adjacent Sections
- Link to Public Transport
- Closest Bus/Train Locations

Length: 2.5 Miles

www.norfolk.gov.uk/trails
Starting from the line of a disused railway on top of the sea wall, this walk soon descends to the beach. The embryo dunes here, spreading seaward, are a reminder of this coastline’s dynamism, the natural cycle of change that ensures every visit is a little different from the last. At the southern end of Caister-on-Sea, the route passes Caister lifeboat station. To see either of the station’s lifeboats launch is quite a spectacle, especially the larger of the two, which is one of the fastest lifeboats in Britain. The old lifeboat shed, just metres from the coast path, has been converted into a museum where visitors can learn about the station’s proud heritage, and the meaning of the motto ‘never turn back,’ now emblazoned above the door of this lovingly restored boat shed.

Beyond the lifeboat station is the beginning of the low-lying dunes of the Great Yarmouth North Denes SSSI. These accreting sand dunes are most important for their little tern colonies, which support almost ten percent of Great Britain’s breeding population.

For further information please visit www.norfolk.gov.uk/trails